Faded Plates

 Any Vermont registration plate faded to a point in which its numbers and letters have impaired identification must be replaced. Replacement of faded plates is at no cost to the owner if the fading is caused by faulty materials or a problem with the manufacturing process. Unless you have vanity or low-number plates, you will receive a new plate number. If you wish to keep your current registration number, which is not a vanity or low number, you must pay the replacement plate fee.
